Education in Bolivia, as in many other areas of Bolivia life, has a divide between Bolivia's rural and urban areas. Rural illiteracy levels remain high, even as the rest of the country becomes increasingly literate. This disparity stems partly from the fact that many children living in rural areas are forced to contribute economically to their family households and thus are much less likely to attend school. On average, children from rural areas attend school for 4.2 years, while children in urban areas receive an average of 9.4 years of education. A gender divide also exists.

✂-----

Females, on average, receive about 1.5 years less schooling than males. The female illiteracy rate is 19.6 % while that for males is 7.7 %. The country's illiteracy level as a whole, 13-14%, is comparably higher than in other South American countries. The problems with Bolivia education are not necessarily attributable to lack of funding. Bolivia devotes 23% of its annual budget to educational expenditures, a higher percentage than in most other South American countries, albeit from a smaller national budget. A comprehensive seven-year plan of education reform has made some significant changes. Initiated in 1994, the plan decentralized educational funding in order to meet diverse local needs, improved teacher training and curricula, and changed the school grade system. Resistance from teachers' unions, however, has slowed implementation of some of the intended reforms.

1. Most of the children in rural areas in Bolivia are illiterate because _____.
 - A. they don't want to go to school.
 - B. they are made to stay at home to help their families.
 - C. they find it difficult to learn to read and write.
 - D. there is a shortage of teachers and schools in Bolivia.
2. On average, children from urban areas attend school for _____.
 - A. 1.5 years
 - B. 4.2 years
 - C. 7.4 years
 - D. 9.4 years
3. The female illiteracy rate in Bolivia is _____.
 - A. 7.4%
 - B. 13%
 - C. 19.6%
 - D. 23%
4. The word "annual" in this passage is closest in meaning to _____.
 - A. every four months
 - B. every year
 - C. every five years
 - D. every ten years
5. Which of the following sentences is NOT true?
 - A. In Bolivia males receive more schooling than females.
 - B. Bolivian illiteracy level is higher than in other South American countries.
 - C. The lack of funding is the main reason for causing illiteracy in Bolivia.
 - D. Bolivia spends less money on education than most other South American countries.
